

The Ten Steps to Goal Activation in the New Year!

By Laurel Inman, PCC

Most people are accustomed to setting New Year's Resolutions at the start of each year. Yet, when we just focus on the future, we miss some rich lessons from the year that just passed. Here is a retreat style method you may follow to gain the most of the year that's passed and leverage the year to come.

Best practice: Set aside half-day or full-day retreat to reflect and get creative. You may follow this process with a few colleagues, on your own or with a mastermind. Conduct this process away from home, rent a cabin or do a stay-cation. If you are at home, create a cozy retreat like atmosphere to gift yourself.

The Ten Steps

1. List out all of my accomplishments this year.
2. List out what worked well this last year?
3. List what didn't work.
What challenges did I face because of what wasn't working?
4. What lessons did I learn this year to take with me into the next year?
What do I need to let go of this year?
5. What all do I wish to accomplish in the coming year?
What lessons from last year will help me?
6. What "quality" will be my focal point this year and will empower me?
7. What are my specific goal statements for this year? List the priorities.
8. What is my empowerment statement for this year?
9. What are my timelines? (Plug these into my calendar)
10. Reflecting on my goals, how would attaining these goals leave me feeling?

Additional tips:

- Step One – you may wish to use a list of life areas, like the Wheel of Life or 8 Domains to generate ideas. You may also ask your friends and/or coach to send you a list of things you have accomplished. Many of us forget just how much we did accomplish.
- Step Four - do a ritual for letting go. Ex: write what you're letting go of on paper and rip it up. Or burn in a fireplace.
- Step Six – The quality is one word or phrase that will be your focal point for the year. EX: Alignment, or, Simplicity, or, Synergy
- Step Eight – Create a statement that powerfully reflects what you want and what you wish to integrate that you learned from last year. This statement should illuminate and support you in the year to come. You can read this statement at the start of each month to keep you on track.
- Step Ten – This is for Law of Attraction. You can take the answers of how it leaves you feeling and create a vision of your accomplishing your goals. Directions: Envision every weekday morning for optimal results.
